

A golden sunrise peeked over the mountains while many attendees listened to Pastor Caleb Kesler preach at Easter sunrise service last Sunday. Seven pastors led the sunrise service: Jesse Vasquez, Robert Broussard, Kesler, Gary Stacy, Jeannie Morago, Darlene Culver, and George Kraft.

The traditional pancake breakfast following the Easter Sunrise Service in the Plaza was very popular this year, so popular, in fact, that members of sponsoring Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church were unable to keep count of partakers. Taking a break in the kitchen from the steady stream of customers were Roy Johnson, Harley Murray, Jack Travener, Angus Braseth, Forrie Burkenbine, and Merlin Dawson. Also helping were Dick Zwyghuizen, Phil Kohn, Walt Puciata, Edward Puciata, and Paul Chader.

The Easter egg hunt sponsored by KAPP through the Pima County Natural Resources, Parks & Recreation on Friday, March 22, was a successful event if you ask Sophi Hernandez, who got to visit with the guest of honor.

Leads are needed in burglary & vandalism cases

While refraining from saying there is a recent "rash" of burglaries and vandalism in the area, the Ajo District office of the Pima County Sheriff's Department is admitting the numbers are significantly higher than normal. In the past two weeks, 6 burglaries and 10 vandalism cases have been recorded in the Sheriff's Log.

So far there are no leads in either of the string of crimes, according to Detective L. Bejarano of PCSD Ajo District.

"No one is talking yet," said Bejarano. "There's no apparent connection between the burglaries and the vandalism. In fact, the most recent burglary appeared to be caused by an undocumented alien who broke in for shelter and to take a few personal belongings."

The vandalism cases do appear to be connected to one another as most involved a BB or pellet gun and broken windshields.

Bejarano recommended making everything inside a residence secure when leaving for extended periods.

"That way a burglar has to make noise trying to take something," he said. "We look at the whole aspect: Were doors and windows closed and locked, were keys left out somewhere? Sometimes house keys will be left in a parked vehicle with the windows rolled down or doors unlocked."

PCSD and SAV periodic checks are available by simply filling out a form at the Ajo District office, noted Bejarano.

"Don't give anyone an opportunity," said Bejarano. "Don't leave things out in the open, be sure to lock doors and windows, especially when leaving a residence unattended for awhile. And call us if someone is hanging out in an area they are not normally seen in."

Reynaldo V. "Ray" Alvillar, Jr.

Reynaldo V. "Ray" Alvillar, Jr., 64, died at a Tucson facility on March 27, 2013.

He was born July 16, 1948, in Jerome, the son of Elizabeth "Betty" & Renaldo V. Alvillar, Sr. The family moved to Ajo from Clarkdale in 1954 and he made the community his home the rest of his life.

Mr. Alvillar was a member of the Ajo High School graduating class of 1966 and continued his education at Arizona Western & Rockland Institute.

He was an Army veteran of Viet Nam, serving 1968 to 1970.

On June 23, 1973, he married Armida Galvez.

Mr. Alvillar worked for Phelps Dodge as a security guard, served as Pima County constable, and coached Ajo High School basketball. He retired from employment with the school in 1987.

He was a member of the Catholic faith and belonged to the Knights of Columbus. He was also active in VFW Post 3578, serving two terms as its commander; belonged to the American Citizens Social Club; and was local representative for Ed Pastor when he was running for Congress.

He was a sports enthusiast and was an All State linebacker during his high school football career. He closely followed his son Moni's coaching career and was very proud of him. He spent many hours coaching and mentoring students, many of whom regarded him as a second father. He was a loyal season ticket holder for ASU football and was a Pittsburgh Steeler fan.

He enjoyed gardening, listening to Tejano music, camping and fishing at Oak Creek, and family gatherings.

Mr. Alvillar was also a history buff and was responsible for the placement of the war memorial in front of the local VFW Post. He often helped other veterans and participated in many military funeral services.

He was often found in a Santa suit during Christmas, giving gifts to children.

"With all his achievements, Ray often said his greatest accomplishment was being married to Armie and being a father to Moni," said a friend.

Mr. Alvillar was preceded in death by his wife, Armida Alvillar, who died November 23, 2009; by his sister, Mary Ellen Salcido, who died July 17, 2009; and by his parents.

Mass will be celebrated by Father Peter Nwachukwu in the church at 10 a.m. on Saturday, April 6. Military graveside honors will be accorded by the VFW; he will be buried next to his wife. On June 2, 1945, he married Alice Marie Thompson in Casper, Wyoming.

He was the retired owner of a NAPA auto parts store in Douglas, Wyoming.

He and his wife moved to Ajo from Wyoming in 2004.

Catalina Sanchez stood outside the locked doors of the business she has operated since 2002. C & J Fashions, on Ajo's main thoroughfare, saw a loss in revenue over the last five years, noted Sanchez, and foreclosure proceedings began about a year ago.

Sanchez was allowed to live in the small house behind the business and continue with sales during the foreclosure process. Last month she received an eviction letter from her loan company and spent her last day on the premises March 26. Sanchez agreed to tell her story to the Ajo Copper News to help the Sheltering Ajo committee bring awareness to the local homelessness issue.

"The large payments [to the loan company] made me sick knowing that I wouldn't be able to keep up with them," said Sanchez through interpreter Jeanne Stagner. "It got to the point I could either make the monthly payment and not have anything left for basic repairs on the run-down house I lived in, or I could spend a little on repairs and not make a payment. There are food stamps and Medicaid; there needs to be financial help for small businesses. I feel so alone in all of this."

Now renting a trailer at $350 a month, Sanchez's $686 Social Security check doesn't go far. She said the trailer is also in need of repair and the neighborhood makes her uncomfortable, she says. She hopes to make ends meet with garage sales and whatever work she can find.

Sheltering Ajo is seeking a grant to help homeless individuals with short-term and long-term housing. Data from a recent street count, sponsored by Pima County, will be used in the grant application process. The committee is also hoping to use local resources to provide temporary shelter to people in situations like Sanchez's. To learn more about the committee or about volunteer opportunities, call the Ajo Federated Church at 387-6033 or e-mail shelteringajo@gmail.com online.

Students in ISDA's afternoon GED program are learning to make musical instruments. In the small picture, taken by Sylvia Tatman-Burruss, Joel Klinefelter and Dylan Johns had fun making a washtub bass. In the bigger picture, snapped by Jewel Clearwater, Adán Martínez, Rodrigo García, Tomás Kalmar and Tony Soto worked on another.

"We make them out of everyday household objects," said Dylan. "It helps the students explore math and science," said Clearwater, counselor to the students in the program. "Joel's knowledge of how to make things, especially musical instruments, was a big help to other students — and to me. And now Joel has gone ahead and passed the GED with flying colors," said Kalmar, co-director of ISDA's Community Learning Center.

"If you know how to make or play musical instruments the students invite you to join them on Friday afternoons," invited Kalmar. To donate materials or for more information call Kalmar at 520-307-7389.

Adrian Vega and Mike "Lonewolf" Baker worked from tall ladders last week to install four decorative signs above the Plaza arches. Fellow Friends of the Plaza member Norm Westbrook offered leveling assistance from the parking area while a number of other volunteers helped clean and replace broken light globes, among other projects along the Plaza esplanade. The signs were installed outside the Ajo Community Market, tourism office, retail space, and public library. Other signs will be redone this summer and additional signs are planned for the future.

"Very nice, I like it," said Judy Sprunger, manager of the community market.

In other Friends of the Plaza efforts, grass seeding and weeding has been ongoing under the leadership of Freeman Fry. Graffiti has been removed from sidewalks in the park area. Sandwich board signs were made by Victor Garcia and Bobby Narcho for the roadway around the Plaza.

A fundraiser dance and silent auction last Saturday will help move projects forward. Main valve plumbing has been repaired in the park area and sprinkler repair continues. More than 20 volunteers make up the Friends of the Plaza.

Plans being laid for 4th of July

The American Legion and the VFW are again sponsoring the 4th of July celebration in Ajo, reports Bryon Blow.

"This year's theme again will be patriotism and honoring education as the means to keep our country the greatest in the world," Blow said.

He noted the parade will be held on the 4th of July and winners will be those that best exemplify the theme. "We all like sports, especially UA sports, but for our nation to advance depends on the education of our citizens so we are going to give prizes for 1st place, 2nd place, 3rd place that do the best in promoting these ideas." They plan to give $300 for first place, $200 for second, and $100 for third.

Blow says the parade contest is open to organizations, individuals, and even student classes from school. He promises five impartial judges.

To enter the parade, contact Kord Klinefelter at NAPA.

"We think the fiber of any town can be judged by how it considers its young people," he said. Blow said Ajo already has the best Christmas for its children in Arizona and they are trying to make the 4th the best in Arizona for those children. "The veterans organizations of Ajo ask you to help us in accomplishing this task."

Ajo's certified wildlife habitats are an ongoing project

"Ajo has received some very unique and very positive national recognition by becoming a Certified Community Wildlife Habitat. This is the foundation for continuing the project," says Vivian Sartori, who led the effort.

"Each year we need to earn 30 points. If you have all the necessary elements and wish to help your community, here is the opportunity," she explained. "Your property must have a water source for wildlife, and vegetation that provides food, shelter and places for wildlife to raise young, and you must maintain the property in a sustainable fashion. Most of us already have many of these elements in place."

Each residential certification is worth 1 point; a community garden or other community site is worth 3 points, and a school is worth 5. Projects by the Habitat Team also count. "Every time you see our booth at a community fair it is worth 5 points," she said.

The Habitat Team has only five members and they welcome new team members.

"We work to educate our community about its wildlife, advise others how to certify their properties, and promote ways in which people, wildlife and plants all thrive in our beautiful Sonoran Desert. To join the team, you must be a permanent Ajo resident and be willing to help wildlife and your community," said Sartori.

ISDA's annual volunteer appreciation dinner drew a packed house in the Curley auditorium last week, filled by those who helped with a wide range of programs and events throughout the year. One group at a time, volunteers were recognized for their involvement with the International Day of Peace, the maintenance and apprenticeship program, Las Artes GED, art gallery openings, volunteer tax assistance, Friends of the Plaza, cultural crafts group, community gardening, and many other activities. Participants were treated to a carne asada taco dinner and a slideshow of the year in review. Jewel Clearwater photo

Leave snakes alone
 When snakes are encountered, it's best to leave them alone. Handling of snakes, even those known to be non-poisonous, is not encouraged by wildlife experts. Non-poisonous snakes will bite when they feel threatened and the wound may become infected.

Solar panels still sit idle at Cabeza

More than $40,000 in solar panels and associated equipment have been sitting unused since being installed on a parking lot roof at the Cabeza Prieta National Wildlife Refuge maintenance garage four years ago. When completed, the project will provide electric power to the refuge warehouse area, and surplus electricity will be sold back to Arizona Public Service.

"The holdup appears to be in getting the drawings correct so APS will accept them," said refuge manager Sid Slone, who inherited the situation from the previous management. "The latest set of drawings still did not meet their standards. This will hopefully get resolved in the next several months. Much of it depends on our regional office getting the issue on a docket so it can be addressed."

Slone added that the last he heard of the issue, the Fish & Wildlife Service engineers in Albuquerque were still busy working on Hurricane Sandy repairs.

An APS meter that reads both ways is reportedly the only item lacking. Slone said he felt the process would likely be easier if the solar panel power was only for use by the refuge; the design allowing for sale of surplus power to APS may be complicating matters. In the meantime, the life-expectancy of the solar panels is now four years less than at the time of installation, and nary an electron of power has been generated.

Loma Bonita to have free gourd workshop

A free gourd workshop will take place at Loma Bonita Orchard & Garden, 820 Esperanza, on Saturday, April 6, from 1 to 5 p.m.

The workshop will offer gourds to thirty attendees and they may decorate them as they wish. There will be acrylic paints, knives and scrapers for carving, a Dremel tool, and some gourd books with stencils.

"Please bring your creativity, any tools you want, paints, patterns, wooden sticks, wood-burning sets, an extra chair, etc., and come have fun with us," invites Gayle Weyers. There will be coffee, water, and sodas available and plenty of shade.

For more information, contact Weyers at 387-6717 or at ajo.gayle@gmail.com online.

Got a helpful neighbor?

Sometimes it's extremely difficult to ask someone not to be so "helpful." Like with watering plants. Specifically, landscape trees and shrubs.

So when the neighbor next to a yard I've been taking care of for years came over to tell me he'd been lugging a hose over the fence to water the big citrus tree in the front yard because "the ground always looked dry," the first thing I noticed was the helpful look on his face, expressing something like, "that's okay, you don't have to thank me, much."

Gee, I wondered, how would that sound if the property owner were present? (e.g. "So, I'm paying you to water and the ground looks dry!?! OMG!")

I couldn't think of anything tactful to say. "Please don't do that," I implored.

The neighbor's face fell. "But the ground. It looks dry."

I've been through the scenario before with others. I've come to the conclusion it's just not possible to correct someone who believes he or she is being... helpful.

"Really," I tried again. "Citrus trees do best on a schedule of deep, infrequent watering. In the hot months, that's once a week, according to the University of Arizona and USDA Extension Office. How can I follow that schedule if two people are watering?"

"But the ground. Did I mention it looked dry?"

I didn't have the heart to tell him that it better look dry. If it doesn't look dry 6 days out of a summer's week, or 13 days out of every 14 in spring and fall, then the plant is getting watered too often. Clay-based desert soils hold water for long periods, and where there is water, there's a lack of air. Which means every time a plant gets watered it has to hold its breath. Watering too often can result in root rot or, over time, a shallow-rooted plant. One works quicker than the other but the result is the same: no more tree. A dry surface is a good sign.

How do you know it's a coral snake?

The coral snake has round pupils, a narrow head, and no pit between the eye and nostril. It is a small snake with small fixed fangs. Because its mouth is small, it cannot easily bite arms or legs and most often successfully strikes fingers or toes.

The coral snake has characteristic yellow-banded red and black rings. To tell the difference between a coral snake and other, non-poisonous imitators, many people remember "Red on yellow, kill a fellow; red on black, venom lack."

Poor Band-Aid

Editor

Bob Dooley's response in last week's Ajo Copper News was concise, cogent, and compelling. I don't know the SB 1325 sponsors. Perhaps they have experience with firearms, but I strongly suspect that few are combat veterans. I do know they are supported by NRA lobbyists and receive monetary reward. They believe the fantasy that "If a good person has a gun, they will be able to blunt an evil person's attack."

Speaking from experience: the first response of virtually all people to lethal force is freeze, hide, or run. As a former conscript of the US military, I had the privilege of training in the use of deadly force before being given a visit to Southeast Asia.

Upon arrival I asked the man I replaced how to survive. Answer? "Stay alive for a month." Any combat veteran will testify that the newbies, replacements, fresh meat (whatever they were called) have a mortality rate probably 10X that of veteran personnel. Why? Despite training, they freeze, hide, run.

Now, strap a small-frame Glock on a 1st-grade teacher suddenly facing a man in combat gear bearing an AR-15 with a 30-round clip. Do you really think she or any teacher has a chance? If you do, I have a bridge in Brooklyn for sale, cheap!

SB 1325 is among the stupidest bills ever proposed in the Arizona Legislature. Given its history, that is saying something.

And please, do not dismiss me as some "liberal who believes guns are evil." They are tools though often horribly abused. As Dr. Dooley notes, "... a poor Band-Aid to a complex cultural wound."

Robert Sorrels

By Greg Burton

If you saw strange glowing objects flying through the night sky last Saturday night you weren't "seeing things". Thirty-nine players were on the golf course that night for our annual Glow Ball tournament and glowing balls were flying everywhere. Ajo golfers were joined by a great group of folks who came all the way from Yuma just to play golf in the dark. Adorned with glowing bracelets and flashlights and only three clubs, participants took off just after dark to play the front six holes. One team got lost and somehow ended up playing seven holes, but at least they all showed up at the clubhouse after the round.

George Steckel captained the winning team of Denny Hunter, Bud Turner and Matt Northcut, followed by captain Dave Tavenner and his team of Norma Steckel, Gary Richardson and Neil McLeod. Third place went to Lonnie Alvarez and his team of Lynn Richardson, Phil Barnhart and Sandy Hoyem.

Yvonne Burton prepared dinner prior to play and Karen Gonzales provided the evening's music. The entertainment was provided by glowing golf balls that somehow never quite flew where they were supposed to. Who says you can't play golf in the dark?

The Pro-Am game Friday, March 22, was won by the team of Bob Gladowski and Patty Taylor, captained by Dick Gates. Second place went to Paul Barnhart's team made up of Phil Barnhart, Carol Peek and Jack Tavenner. Third place went to Greg Burton's team, made up of Barbra Martin, Willie Maya and Mike Merrigan.

Tony McGarry and Marty McCrystal cleaned up at Skins last Monday, each having two skins apiece - Tony on holes 10 and 11, and Marty with skins on holes 14 and 17. Greg Burton had a skin on 15, and Mike Sheridan got one on 16.

The Couples game on Wednesday afternoons is really getting intense with very close matches. This week Frank Milene and Carol Peek pulled out the win, shooting a 28.2. Harley and Elaine Murray came in second with a 29.2. George and Norma Steckel were third with 29.6, and Paul and Trudy Barnhart shot a 30.4.

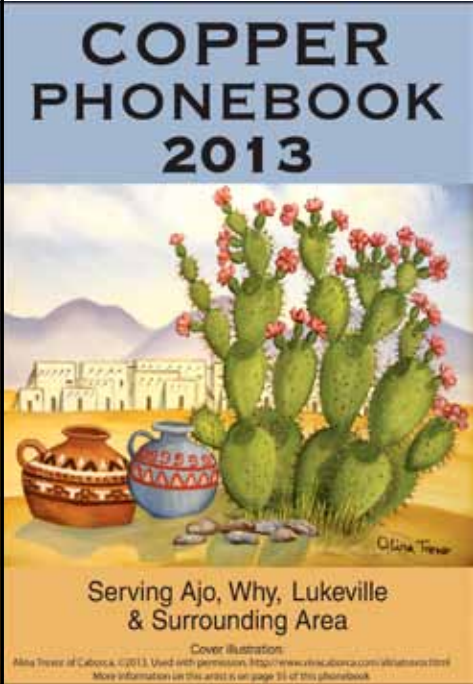

We've had a lot of fun this year at the Ajo Community Golf Course and encourage any of you even considering the game of golf to come on out and join us. It really is a beautiful way to enjoy the outdoors and our gorgeous Sonoran Desert. The Clubhouse closes for the season on March 30 but the golf course remains open with the honor box system in place for you to pay your fees. Enjoy your community golf course but please pay your fees. It takes money to keep the course mowed and watered. We appreciate your support this year. See you in September.
