Superintendent Robert Dooley spoke to the board about likely effects from voter decision to not renew a 1% statewide sales tax imposed three years ago to aid education. He estimated that in the past four years, $238,000 has been cut from the local school budget, and that the sales tax repeal will represent approximately another $100,000 in local cuts.

“Our English budget was cut 44% in the past year,” he said, “and for tax repeal will represent approximately another $100,000 in local cuts.”

He told the board there would be more extensive discussion of the budget situation at its December meetings.

Students & parents learned more about financial aid

Dr. Aubrey Conover, vice president of student development at the Pima Community College west campus, talked to Ajo school students and parents last Thursday during the Reach for the Stars student-family orientation in the school cafeteria. PCC financial aid specialist Lipita Serrano talked about scholarship and other financial opportunities that may be applied for.

Conover pointed out that tuition costs vary dramatically from one educational institution to another. He said a fulltime student 12-credit tuition cost at PCC runs $762, whereas fulltime tuition at the University of Arizona is $4,557. Class size, he said, can also vary widely, anywhere from 35 students per classroom to 350.

At the same time, admissions requirements can vary as much as costs. He said students and parents need to research the many aspects of higher education and actively seek out resources for academic assistance. Serrano added that a FAFSA, or Free Application for Federal Student Aid, should be downloaded from www.fafsa.gov online.
Claire Bistline & daughter fight cancer together

Ajo artist Claire Bistline was diagnosed in August with the most aggressive type of breast cancer. The diagnosis was an unfortunate twist, occurred while Bistline was in Spokane taking care of her daughter Erin, who is undergoing radiation and chemotherapy for her daughter's cancer.

The mother-daughter team is currently in Spokane for mutual support during treatment. Bistline's two young grandchildren help out wherever possible. Claire and Erin alternate chemo sessions so they can better care for one another. Fellow artist Wendee Cloutier noted that both are strong women but the treatments are very tiring.

A yard sale is planned for Saturday, December 1, beginning at 8 a.m. at the Bruce & Kathy Davis residence, 200 Morondo Avenue. Funds raised will be used toward medical costs and transportation for Bistline's husband Terry Gonzalez to make visits from Ajo.

Register now for Angel Wish Tree

Registration for eligible families for the Angel Wish Tree program begins Friday, November 23, at the Pima County Community Services Office, 120 West Esrella. The office is open Tuesdays and Wednesdays from 8 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 5 p.m., and on Thursdays from 8 to 11 a.m. The contact person is Mary Garcia.

Organized and sponsored by Pima County Natural Resources, Parks and Recreation, the Angel Wish Tree program is offered to less-privileged children to age 12. Volunteer gift wrappers and delivery personnel ask that unwrapped gifts be dropped off at the Ajo Community Center at Walker Park as early as possible so all gifts may be delivered December 19. Angel tags for gift sponsors will be available for pick-up at the community center or the Desert Senita Community Health Center by December 1.

For more information or to volunteer for gift wrapping, call PCNPR at 387-6641.

Adult aerobics begins Nov. 26

An adult low-impact aerobics class begins Monday, November 26, at the Ajo Community Center at Walker Park. Sessions will be on Mondays, Tuesdays, and Thursdays at 7:30 a.m. A nominal fee is charged for the six-week program.

The exercise program will emphasize stretching, toning through the use of exercise bands, free weights, and other equipment. Participants are asked to bring an exercise mat and drinking water.

Adult aerobics is a program of the Pima County Natural Resources, Parks and Recreation. To learn more, contact Lucila Malvido at 387-6641.

Delainey Kesler, 8, shook hands with military veteran Louis Moreno, 90, who was one of the many veterans in attendance at The River Church celebration of Veterans Day last week Ajo Christian Academy students and other youngsters read poems and sang a song to the veterans to honor them for their service.

Each veteran received a gift.
Letter to the editor
Stew over chicken
Editor:
I was doing business in our local bank the other day and happened to meet up with our local Animal Control Officer. She politely told me that my neighbor had called her about my rooster. I asked if it was an acute or short-term. She said both. Perhaps a short-timer might be less likely to allow me about the opportunity to improve my neighborhood. My first point is that it is great to live in a community where public servants like the Animal Control Officer will inform me of an activity that could become a fine. This process has been happening for at least 13 years, because when I moved to the neighborhood and did not have a fence yet, the Animal Control Officer did come to my job to notify me of my unintentional crime of tying out my dogs. Oops!

Secondly, I did not intend to have a rooster. Gender is not obvious in 3-day-old chicks and the first time I got chicks, I got lucky — no rooster. I encourage neighbors to talk to neighbors and sometimes knowledge will be exchanged. It appears that a rooster has a small brain and crows whenever I walk out the back door. Over the past two weeks we have had a plumbing issue and had to run next to the grandma cottage for facilities. One night, it was extremely early, and yes, the rooster crawled. Yikes! Over the past days, I think this extremely early cock-a-doodle-doo has stopped. The plan is to stew the rooster and use the rainbow-colored feathers to learn to tie flies, make habibs or perhaps earrings. “Gemmery” is a gorgeous creature with a huge crop, making him tolerate the hot summers in Ajo. That makes him a good breeder. One person in Ajo is trying to breed a more heat-tolerant chicken. Anyone wanting more information or some of my feathers can ask their neighbors where to find me. Volunteers, supplies and donations are needed to get the heat-tolerant chicken operation going if interested.

Thirdly, I beg for a little patience. Rick Martynec displays an array of photos across several decades with people, wall art and flowers. “Gemmy” is a gorgeous creature with a huge crop, making him a good breeder. Thirdly, I beg for a little patience. It’s time to dust off those favorites architectural plans for crafting the ultimate holiday structure. A gingerbread house-making contest will take place on Saturday, December 15, during the Christmas festival in the Plaza sponsored by Ajo Calvary Baptist Church and The River Church. Kaye & Ben Friend admired the artwork of mouth-painter Alina Trevor, who was the beneficiary of a Chuck’s Wagon barbeque fundraiser last week. Helping with the event were chef Chuck Johnson, Mike & Cathy MacFarland, Anita Phelps, & Mae Ehran.

An artist in Caborca, Sonora, Mexico, Trevor was injured in an automobile accident one month before her 17th birthday. Paralyzed from the neck down, she paints with a brush in her mouth. Her art has been featured in exhibits around the world. Much of her work is painted from memory through her love of the desert, flowers, and other facets of nature.

A visit by the MacFarlands to Caborca in 2008 started the fundraiser efforts. They visited Trevor in her studio and were struck by her talents and her personality.

“You have to meet her to see how sweet she is,” said Mike MacFarland. “She speaks English very well and loves having company. IGA classes are a family affair

This is not simply a story of commitment, hard work, and becoming better at your job. Nor is it only about four people who balance jobs and education. It’s those things and more: working as a team to develop a better workplace while achieving individual goals, and, having fun. And, importantly, it’s a family thing for all.

For the past six weeks, Olsens IGA has sponsored a voluntary on-line training program for its employees as part of the IGA-Coca Cola Institute. Participants study on their own time and are required to have an 80% or better test score for certification. Typical class subjects include coursework such as customer service and professionalism, food safety and sanitation, sexual harassment issues, and cross-training in all departments, and more than 90 courses are available.

Three of the students share the distinction of being siblings. Jorge Estrada, 17, and Jose Aguilar Delgado, 16, are part-time Olsens employees, while their big sister, Yolanda Aguilas, 28, is a cashier at the store. Linda Hood, bakery and deli manager, is in the program as well. Hood, 51, also raises her 12-year-old grandson, Joshua.

Aguilas and her brothers grew up together in Phoenix. “We were always close growing up,” said Linda. “And now I can keep an eye on them at work, too,” she laughed. She’s worked at Olsens for nearly two months now, and in addition to work and classes, she’s raising four children – 12, 10, 7, and 3 years old. Future plans include completing her GED and be ahead in life,” said Jorge.

Jose is a sophomore. He enjoys welding and has his eye set on college and law-enforcement work. “The things we’re learning help make me a better person,” he said of the IGA program. “And when everybody works as a team, it all works out better. It makes a person that much more valuable.”

Hood said that she and her grandson do homework together, and that while the coursework is time-consuming, “these are things you can use in daily life. It’s wonderful that it gets us into new areas.”

“That’s praise they all share. “It’s always better to know more than a little, always good to learn new things,” said Jorge. “It’s fun because you’re working in one area, but you learn what everyone else does,” added Yolanda.

“There’s such an advantage to learning,” said Hood.

The family ties are clearly a benefit. Yolanda, Jorge, and Jose live together, work together, study together. “If it gets quiet, you know there’s something wrong,” said Jose. Hood said that the time spent with her grandson is enriched and special.

“We’re all trying to get ahead and be ahead in life,” said Jorge.

Learn to plan a garden and keep records for seeds

The Ask-a-Gardener program continues this month with a presentation at the public library about garden planning and record keeping as a tool for seed saving. It will be held at 2 p.m. on Friday, November 23.

Ask-a-Gardener presentations are a collaboration between the Ajo Community Garden Consortium and the Salazar-Ajo Branch Library. Kathleen Stevens said the monthly presentations will be casual to encourage questions.

“Since we can grow in a sustainable way without also saving seed – and saving our own seed is the best way to develop plants that work best for our garden – I feel that actively supporting an effort like the Seed Library is absolutely necessary for anyone serious about local sustainability,” said Stevens.

Stevens will also be on hand during a volunteer work session at the ACGC community garden, located between the Rock Church and Marcela’s, on Saturday, November 24, from 9 a.m. to noon. She will discuss the new garden site and field gardening-related questions.

The three-day grand opening of the new ACE hardware business in Olsens IGA took place last weekend with the parking lot full all three days. Above, Sally Banks, left, and Carol Johnson got help in the paint section. The store-within-a-store has approximately 25,000 items in stock in a 3500-square-foot area. “It’s about 85%-90% of what we have available in a 10,000-square-foot store,” said Kevin Hide, ACE district manager. Hide said that the grocery/hardware store combination is the first of its kind in the state.
The Ajo Garden Club has awarded the November Yard of the Month to Robert & Janice Thomas at 120 W. 8th Street. "They welcome everyone to stop by and see their beautifully landscaped yard with many new plantings," said club members.

Youth soccer is at Walker Park

The youth soccer league organized by Pima County Natural Resources, Parks and Recreation is holding games on Monday afternoons at Walker Park.

Players in the 4- to 5-year-old age group compete at 3:30 p.m. Those in the 6- to 8-year-old age group compete at 4 p.m. The 9- to 12-year-old group plays at 4:30 p.m.

The season will end December 17, and PCNRPR encourages everyone to watch the fun and support the young athletes.

VFW is holding public potluck for Thanksgiving

The VFW will hold a potluck on Thanksgiving Day, starting at 1 p.m.

Everyone is welcome, say organizers. Those attending are asked to take a dish to share and a place setting. Turkey and ham will be provided.

Harold Hummer, left, of the Arizona Community Tree Council, offered a lesson on native tree planting and supervised the backfilling of a newly planted foothills palo verde behind the former Border Patrol building in Why last week. Doing shovel work were Shaw MacGill of the National Park Service, Stacy Guinn of Freeport-McMoRan Copper & Gold Inc., Kenneth Richardson of NPS, Organ Pipe superintendent Lee Balza, Scott Good and Brian Rose of the US Border Patrol, and Ken Tallant and Bob Bryant of NPS. At right, Heilee O’Quinn of the Arizona Community Tree Council moved in close for a photo.

The landscape enhancement project began earlier in the year when staff at the Organ Pipe Cactus National Monument submitted a proposal to the Arizona Community Tree Council on behalf of USBP for two trees for planting on the grounds of the original Border Patrol station in Why. The trees were sponsored by Freeport-McMoRan.

Also applying for the program was Greg Burton of the Ajo Community Golf Course. Two desert willow trees were planted between fairways 6 and 7, with the help of the golf course board of directors and other volunteers, and Stacy Guinn.

Hummer is also a utility arborist with Tucson Electric Power. He lived in Ajo as a child from 1950 to 1957 and said he recalls people saying the town had anywhere from 6,000 to 16,000 residents at the time. He remembers the July 4 fireworks off the tailings with a big celebration in the Plaza, Santa at Christmas time, scouts, the Copper Giant theatrical production, sleeping on screened porches, and evaporative coolers for cars where the back seat occupants would end up drenched. He attended the Immaculate Conception school while Fathers Shrednak and Yales were at the church. He said a feature movie, a few cartoons, and popcorn was a deal at the Oasis Theater for 25¢. The drive-in theater was also a hit with Hummer’s mother making popcorn and I flew at Kool-Aid. Hummer became something of a celebrity while in Ajo when he and his two brothers contracted polio and were featured in an Arizona Republic news article.

“I live in Tucson but I’m really an Apolite,” he said. “I really enjoyed growing up in Ajo. This is only my third time back and it’s changed quite a bit, especially from the perspective of an eight-year-old. It’s just cool to be back.”

Joel Mallfitt is the new math teacher at Ajo Unified School District for grades 9 through 12.

He has a bachelor’s degree in secondary education with a major in mathematics and general science. Previously he taught math at the University of City of Muntinlupa in the Philippines and at Prince George’s County Public Schools in Maryland.

“I enjoyed working with other students when I was in high school and my high school teacher influenced me to become a teacher,” he said.

He commented that life in Ajo is simple and rural.

His hobbies and interests include photography, hiking, and other outdoor activities.

Thanksgiving facts

The Plymouth Pilgrims were the first to celebrate Thanksgiving after sailing across the Atlantic Ocean to the New World. The first Thanksgiving lasted three days.

Rufina Alcancio is a new teacher at Ajo Unified School District this year. She teaches social studies and middle school math proficiency development.

With 22 years of teaching experience – 17 in the Philippines and 5 in the US – Alcancio’s education includes master’s degrees in economics & special education, and a bachelor’s degree in economics.

“Teaching is a most fulfilling career,” she said. “I know I have what it takes to help the students maximize their potentials and succeed in life.”

Commenting on life in Ajo, she said she likes the strong community spirit and the warmth and hospitality of the people.

In her spare time she enjoys playing guitar, watching television, and reading.

She is married to Ferdinand Alcancio. They have five children, Ruben (22), Bea (20), Benicz (17), Bobbie (15), and Bettina (9).

It’s almost time to renew property tax exemptions

The Pima County Assessor’s Office will be mailing out the property tax exemption renewal affidavits the first week of January to taxpayers who are currently receiving an exemption. The filing time period for 2013 is from January 1 to March 1.

First time applicants for widows, widowers, and disabled property tax exemptions will have to file in person at the assessor’s office at 33 N. Stone, Suite 130, Tucson, AZ 85701, or at one of the scheduled library visits after January 1.

Property tax exemption affidavits from charitable organizations, churches and others are required to be filed with the assessor’s office during the same filing period for individuals January 2 to March 1, 2013.

Questions may be directed to the assessor’s office at (520) 724-7500.

Basketball prediction: Interesting!

By Robert Sorrels

“It’s going to be an interesting season," was the sentiment shared by Lady Raider coach Brad Harvey and Raider coach Brian English. Interesting season is coach-speak for: I’ve got a young team and a new system. We’ll take some lumps along the way.

The Ajo boys’ and girls’ teams do share some characteristics. They are young – both will start freshmen. They lack height. The tallest Raider is 6’ while the Lady might be 5’9”, and they aren’t particularly fast. Still both coaches are quietly optimistic noting that several players are “quick,” which is valuable.

Harvey is pleased with the turnout but has 3 freshmen and 4 sophomores and only 2 players with much experience. “Our emphasis is on recognizing that it is a team effort and we are doing well with that.”

The Lady Raiders are implementing a motion offense and will begin the season playing a tight zone. If they progress well, they might move to “man up” and a trapping defense. “This system puts a lot of responsibility on the player. Every time she handles the ball she’ll have to make decisions on movement and line of attack. It really requires responsibility on the player. Every time she handles the ball she’ll have to go into that profession. Another factor that negatively impacts all in public education is the lack of funding for programs and salaries in Arizona when compared with 47 states that fund schools better than Arizona does.

Regardless of these facts, we in Ajo have been able to hire well-trained public school educators for which we all should be thankful. In the public school system in Arizona, it is not enough to be certified. One must be “highly qualified” as deemed by the state of Arizona to teach in a given grade level and in a given content area. Of the 39 certificated staff in your local public school system, 11 possess a minimum of a Bachelor’s Degree. This means they have completed at least 4 years of rigorous college training. Another 25 have completed a minimum of a Master’s Degree.

To receive a Master’s Degree, one must minimally attend 5 years of training at the university level…not college, but university. One teacher has a vocational education certificate. To receive this a credential a teacher must document in excess of 600 hours of employment in the trade in which he/she teaches. Two of our staff have been granted doctoral degrees.

To complete a doctoral degree, one must follow a rigorous university program that includes internships, at least two series of written oral comprehensive exams, a dissertation, and a minimum of 8 years of college depending upon the program outlined by the university which granted the degree.

I challenge other rural and remote public school districts to produce a list of professional staff with this admirable a list of credentials. People do not go into education to become financially prosperous. They go into the educational profession to help students’ lives. Having an advanced degree does not guarantee this, but it does make the statement that a given educator cared enough to seek additional training to try to find ways to do their job better.

I am thankful for learners…regardless of their age.
